

Kevin R. Kosar, Ph.D., is a resident scholar at the American Enterprise Institute, a Washington, DC think-tank, where he studies the US Congress, American politics, and the US Postal Service.

Most recently, he is the co-editor of Congress Overwhelmed: Congressional Capacity and Prospects for Reform (University of Chicago Press), and the co-author of Unleashing Opportunity: Policy Reforms for an Accountable Administrative State (National Affairs, 2017). He received his doctorate and master's degree from New York University, and his bachelor's degree from The Ohio State University. He hosts the Understanding Congress podcast.

Previously, he was the vice president of research partnerships at the R Street Institute. He co-founded the Legislative Branch Capacity Working Group, which aims to strengthen Congress, and established LegBranch.org, an online hub for congressional reform and scholarship. Between 2003 and 2014, Kosar served as an analyst and acting research manager at the Library of Congress's Congressional Research Service. His publications may be found at <http://www.kevinrkosar.com>.